About the Conference

More and more people are seeking help from human service professionals to assist them in learning how to take control of their anger. The research indicates that 20% of the population has an anger management problem. Anger is a normal human emotion; however, when it is not controlled properly, it can be destructive to all who are affected by it.

Not only are private individuals and families seeking help with their anger, the criminal justice system is mandating clients to anger management programs. Also, employers and schools are seeking anger management services for their employees and students.

The Certified Anger Management Specialist program is designed for individuals interested in developing a specialization in anger control training. There is a growing need for services for people who present with anger management problems and a scarcity of professionals who are equipped to offer this service. The Certified Anger Management Specialist Certification will provide you with the skills and knowledge to meet the growing need in your community.

Who Should Attend:

The certification training is LPC's, LCSW, SA Counselors, and others interested in developing specialization in Anger Control and Intervention Counseling.

Continuing Education Credits of 12 hours have been applied for through GACA, LPC, and LCSW.
