About the Conference

Mandated clients often describe the treatment as "doing time." They focus on the "release date," and are more concerned with meeting the requirements of what is recommended by the judge, probation officer, child welfare, public assistance, the employer, the family, or some other monitoring authority, than with the successful completion of clinical goals established by the treatment provider.

Words such as "mandated," "involuntary," or "criminal justice" invoke certain attitudes in clinicians, such as, "difficult," "resistant", "oppositional" or "defiant," as well the other commonly used description of clients: "in denial," or "minimizes the seriousness of the problems." It does not take a big leap to then interact with the client in a manner that assume that these descriptions are true. Before long, the client truly displays many of the signs of being "noncompliant" and having a "bad attitude."

This workshop will provide the counselor with solution focused strategies to reduce resistant and to enhance treatment outcomes.

Continuing Education Credits of 6 hours have been applied for through GACA, IC&RC, LPC.

Tuition: $85. 00
